The Universe of

Marine City

Ward-Cottrell High

The Mariner
Marine City Ward-Cottrell High School
Marine City, Michigan
1962-1963

As man has progressed through time, he has passed through many ages: the Stone Age, Bronze Age, Steel Age, and presently the Space Age. Those of us who are now in high school have grown up with the realization that by the time we are adults, there may very likely be interplanetary travel. Because we are made so very aware of the universe around us, it seems only likely that we would compare it with our daily environments. A most important part of this environment is the school where we spend many of our waking hours both in working and in learning, and our social life centers around it.

We on the MARINER Staff have thus chosen for our theme "The Universe of Marine City Ward-Cottrell High." We believe it is a good topic, for it is the education we receive today in our school years that will enable us to visit and understand the surrounding planets.

Dedication

We, the MARINER Staff, dedicate the 1963 MARINER to Mrs. McCarron. By this, we hope in some small way to repay her for her many years of unselfish service to Marine City Schools. Because of her kindness and understanding, we who have been in her classes have gained much knowledge. May she have many more years of successful teaching!

Changes

Student Council's Christmas Tree

In this universe of ours, changes come under the title of advancements. So it is also with the world of Marine City Ward-Cottrell High.

Advancements made this year include a new superintendent for our school district, a new home economics teacher, a new counselor, an aluminum Christmas tree which was purchased by the Student Council, and a standing file to hold the composite picture of each of Marine City's graduating classes.

Administration

In the universe the different planets center around the sun. The sun supplies the planets with light and warmth, and if it weren't for this large shining star, there would not be a universe.

Similar to the sun of our universe is the administration of our school. All activities in the school are supervised by the administration. In other words, the school centers around the administration. In addition to this, the administration is similar to the sun in that it supplies the pupils with the light of learning and the warmth of knowledge. If it weren't for the administration to guide the school, there wouldn't be an opportunity for us to obtain an education.

Board of Education

The Board of Education members are Mr. Edwin Lindow, trustee; Mr. Leland Sass, treasurer; Mrs. Mary Phillips, secretary; Mr. John Kralik, president; Mr. Donald MacDonald, vice president; Mr. Milton Gearing, trustee; and Mr. William Hopson, trustee.

Superintendent

Dr. Appel, superintendent of schools, was born in Alpena, Michigan. He taught in Dearborn Township, Highland Park, and Niles and at Michigan State before coming to the East China School District. He has received bachelor's master's and doctoral degrees.

Principal

Mr. Trudell hails from Ishpeming, Michigan. He came here in 1950 and has been principal for ten years. He attended Northern, the University of Michigan, and Michigan State.

When the sun sets and the world is in darkness, there arises in the east a bright light that brings hope into this darkness. This object comes in different shapes and amounts of light, but it is always there. The object, of course, is the moon.

In the world of the school, the phase that best resembles the moon is academics. Like the moon, the amount of education received through academics comes in different shapes and amounts. Some pupils excel in all courses; some, in a few; and some, in none. The amount doesn't matter so long as everyone has the opportunity for this education. It is this education which will lead the person through life.

As the moon is the hope of the world in the fight against darkness, so is education through academics the hope of the world in the fight against ignorance.

In the study of Spanish a person receives a knowledge of not only the language but also the customs and beliefs of the people. Shown here as she leisurely reads a Spanish assignment if Jane Hanley.

English is the national language in the United States and to insure its proper usage, three years of comprehensive study are required of all students with the fourth year an elective. In addition to English, Marine City High offers a foreign language, Spanish.

It seems that no one quite appreciates the library until it comes time for the Senior English term paper to be written. It is in this room that the Seniors hunt up material to be used in this all important piece of informative writing. Sally Hill is pictured here as she takes a break from her quest for information.

Biology is the science of living things. It is studied vigorously by Sophomores. Shown here discussing the organs of a fish are Mary Kay Davidson and Diane Miller.

Unlike solid geometry, which concerns many-sided objects, plane geometry is the treatment of one-sided objects. Lee Ann Simons is pictured here as she demonstrates a problem for the class.

The study of solid geometry embraces the mathematics of objects with more than one side. Pictured here are Jerry Foster and Alan Bulgrin discussing one such problem.

Today we live in a highly scientific world where the greatest emphasis is placed upon an adequate knowledge in the fields of science and mathematics. Marine City High, not to fall behind the rest of the nation, includes in its curriculum the following science and math courses: Algebra I and II, Geometry, Trig, Solid Geometry, General Science, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics.

Science

The proper form for business letters is a major requirement in today's business world. This knowledge is gained in the Typing II class. Pictured above is Sandy Hill, who is practicing to acquire the correct form.

Commercial

In today's commercial classes, the goal is to produce better secretaries and bookkeepers for tomorrow. Classes striving for this goal are Shorthand I and II, Typing I and II, Bookkeeping, Junior Business, and Business English. In these classes students obtain practical experience which will prove useful in chosen careers.

One of the chief requirements in bookkeeping is the correct total. The adding machine proves to be a valuable instrument in arriving at this figure. Shown using this instrument is Barbara McLean.

Dictation and transcription are two important words in the vocabulary of today's secretary. The knowledge of the meaning of these words is gained in the shorthand classes. Joyce Wagner is pictured below in the process of using this knowledge.

Continual practice is necessary for speed in typing. Pictured below are Marlene Osterland, Sandra Barks, and Barbara Schroeder, who wish to increase their speed.

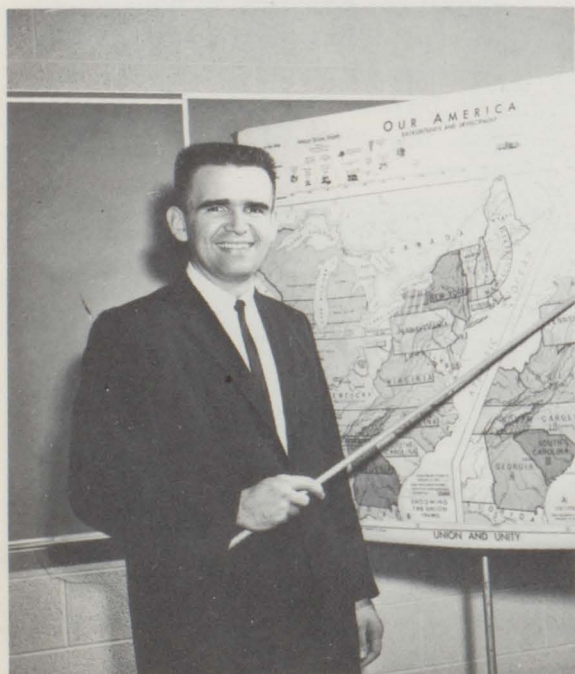

In government classes the students are kept up to date on current happenings through the weekly news brief, THE AMERICAN OBSERVER. Shown here discussing a recent issue are Susan Beebe and Kathy Cullen.

World history concerns the ancient world for the most part. To imagine that world and the one we now live in is a difficult task. Judy Phelps is shown in the world history class as she tries to locate some of the ancient civilizations on a modern map.

Social Sciences

One of the requirements for graduation from Marine City Ward-Cottrell High School is that all students pass both United States history and government courses. The reason for this is that we, in order to become good citizens, must have an understanding of our government—how it came to be and how it works.

Art Class

The art program in Marine City High includes Art I, II, and III and Design and Crafts. Students carry on various projects such as basket weaving, ceramics, abstract design, and still life.

Homemaking

Home economics is required for all Freshman girls. It is in these classes that the homemakers of tomorrow are trained today. The stress is placed on cooking and sewing; but the more advanced the class is, the more specialized it is. In these advanced classes, there is more emphasis on nutrition and child care. Among the projects undertaken are the making of a wool outfit and the preparation of a complete meal.

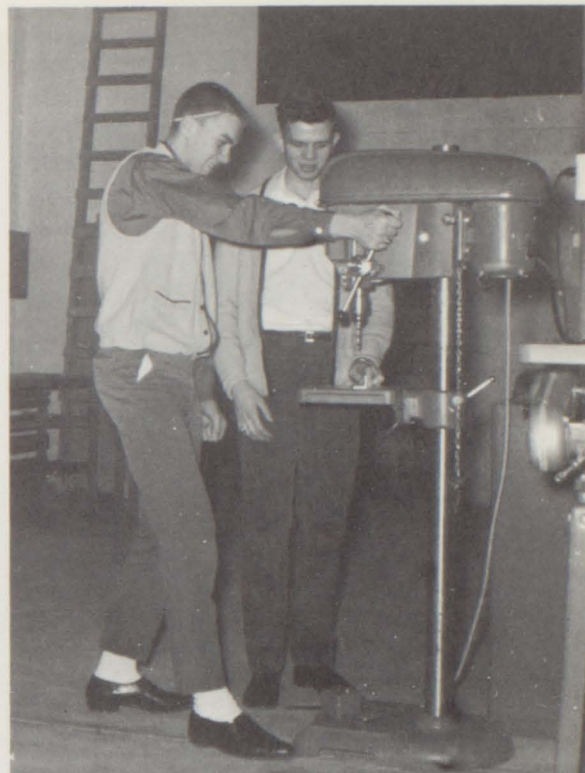

One of the less glamorous tasks in the field of home economics is the cleaning up after the project. Shown here performing this task are Susan Winckler and Georgia Lyons.

Busy working on one of his Mechanical Drawing II projects is Dan Giardina, who is being coached by Randy Mikolowski, Al Meredith, and Frank Forsyth.

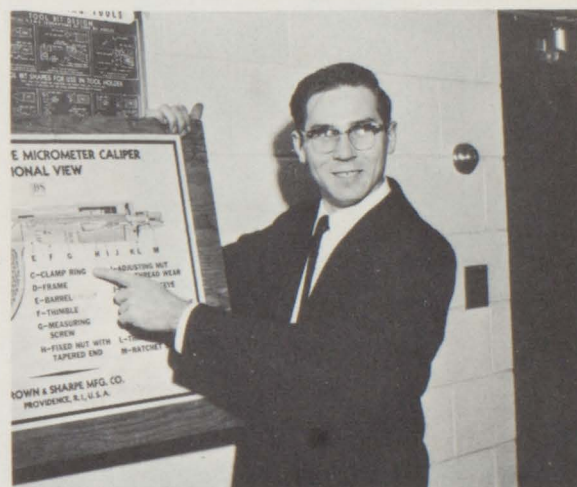

Shown using the drill press in the woodworking room are Tom Kaufman and Larry Summerville.

Shop

Shop is required for all Freshman boys as home economics is for girls. Advanced courses offered for upper classmen include carpentry and metal shop. These courses are offered on an area basis so that better instruction and equipment are available. Other classes include machine shop, metal shop, and wood shop. For those interested two courses in mechanical drawing are available.

We have already established that the moon brings light into the world at night, but it cannot be given the full credit for all the light in the darkness. The moon has the help of the millions of bright, twinkling objects we call stars.

Similarly, academics cannot be given complete credit for bringing into the world all the light of knowledge. While school is made up of mostly books and studies in the academics, there must also be extra-curricular activities to help develop the full personality of the student. These activities, or stars, help the academics, or the moon, to shatter the darkness, or ignorance.

Student Council Activities

Some of the Student Council's activities this year are organizing the homecoming parade and dance, sponsoring the talent assemblies and the Lenten assemblies, campaigning for a uniform school ring, presenting an assembly on the dropout problem, and decorating the Christmas tree.

Annually the Student Council presents a talent show. At this assembly all the talented members of the student body perform before their fellow students. This year the assembly included singing, pantomiming, presentation of the dance band, baton twirling, serious and humorous readings, and piano playing. Three of these acts were chosen to represent our school at the Area Talent Show. These three acts are shown on the Student Council activity page. The others are shown here. Erik Silden served as master of ceremonies.

F.T.C.

The Future Teachers Club consists of students considering teaching as a career. They are given an opportunity to get a better idea of what teaching is all about by spending time observing in classrooms and even taking part in some aspects of teaching. Cadet teachers are in classrooms at Washington and Ward-Cottrell Elementary schools and at Marine City Junior High.

More than just cooking was done by the FHA this year. Before Christmas the club made mittens for the children at Washington Elementary School. Early in January the club had a tobogganing party at Judy Wolgast's home. The club entertained the St. Clair club at a dinner meeting, too.

F.H.A.

X-Period

During X Hour the students watch assemblies or attend various club meetings. Pictured here are Jerry Foster giving a speech on his visit to Germany; Bill Winters giving demonstrations at an assembly sponsored by General Motors; Nancy Moody and Mary Hillier at an Art Club meeting; athletes receiving football awards. These are some of the assemblies, presented throughout the year.

During a storm, did you ever look out a window and watch with fascination as lightning came streaking toward the earth with what seemed like all the brilliance possible? You may have noticed not only the brilliance but also, in spite of its momentary appearance, a more lasting effect, rain.

In your observations, did you ever consider how this compares with your school life? It does, you know, especially in the sports life of the school.

Sports arouse a similar reaction in that they stimulate the emotions of those playing and watching and cause them to reveal their personalities. Lightning brings great light to a world in darkness before a storm. Sports, like the other school activities, bring light to the dark world by helping develop the well rounded personality. It has been stated that lightning is only momentary but brings lasting results. Similarly, while sports activities are limited by the types offered, their results are lasting in that the experiences received are always remembered.

The Mariners in Action

One reason for an exceptionally successful season this year was the ability of the Mariner line to stop all ground attacks by opponents. This ability can clearly be seen in these two pictures.

The end of day and the coming of night are marked by the setting of the sun in the west. Similarly, the end of our secondary education and the beginning of our maturity are marked by graduation .

When the sun sets, it is the end of one day but also the beginning of another, just over the horizon. Being a senior and graduation are similar to the sunset in these respects. Though our high school years are ended with graduation, beyond this horizon there is further education for some of us, while others will enter the world of business. But for all there is becoming adults and worthwhile citizens—bright new days in a gray old world.

In the morning, as the world awakens from a night of slumber, there arises in the east a bright object, the sun. In its rising, it is young and inexperienced but eager to learn and to follow in the steps of the previous day. It will make mistakes but will learn from them also.

In the school world, underclassmen remind us very much of this eager young sun in its rising. After spending the previous eight or nine years in elementary and junior high, they rise on our horizon in quest of more detailed learning.

In four years we try our best and succeed in most cases in teaching them a way of life that may always be clung to.

But like the young sun, which has only a day in which to learn, and then must set over the next horizon, so must the underclassmen learn rapidly. They have four years in our world and then along comes graduation, when they must leave our protection and journey on to the next, large sunrise.

Have you ever seen a rainbow in the sky after a spring shower and wonder if there really were a pot of gold at the end of it? More than likely you brushed the idea off as a fairy tale. But we of the MARINER Staff know that there is a pot of gold at the end of the rainbow.

For our final comparison we'd like to tell you a little about the rainbow. It's made up of different colors and appears only after a shower. Well, this is also true of the following six pages. They are made up of different names and products for sale, and they appear only after hard work by the advertiser.

Maybe there isn't gold at the end of this rainbow, but there is great wealth to be had if one only cashes in on the joy that this thing of beauty brings back to the rain soaked earth. Similarly, our advertisers are to us a rainbow because they have made possible our improving our product and they have brought joy into our life.
